A Benefit of Chamber
 Membership

A benefit of Chamber Membership is the introduction of Chamber Bucks. Chamber Bucks come in $5, $10, $25 & $50 denominations and can be bought at the Chamber Office. They can only be redeemed at the businesses of chamber members. They should be handled just like a check – deposit them directly into your business bank account. There is no cost to you, the merchant, and the chamber makes no money on this, it is strictly a benefit.

Anyone can purchase Chamber Bucks, and will receive a list of places they can be redeemed. They are perfect for hard to buy for friends, family and co-workers; and are great for any occasion because they can be redeemed at a number of different places (retail, restaurants, etc.)

Operation Renewed Hope presentation at Terrace Heights

In April, the tenants of Terrace Heights Retirement Community in Mauston were treated to a presentation by Don and Sharon Rosine, who recently completed a 10-day medical mission trip to Chile as members of the Christian non-profit group Operation Renewed Hope (ORH). The organization delivers medical, educational and humanitarian relief worldwide to those who are in need.

During the recent trip, the group spent most of its time on a few islands off the southern part of Chile. There the volunteers experienced 60-degree temperatures during the day, but only 30-degree temperatures at night. Along with the cold showers that they had to endure on the islands, they also lived without electricity from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m. Though this meant they had to eat breakfast by candlelight every morning, they also got a great view of all the stars at night.

There were 36 people in all who took time out of their schedules in January to make the trip. The Chilean people were very appreciative of the services that had been brought to them from the United States. In Chile, there is only one doctor to take care of all the people on the islands where ORH went, and the resources are few.

Sharon talked about her time on the boat getting to and from the islands; while Don shared the story of losing his luggage for the entire trip (he was able to get his belongings back on the way home). Along with the memories they shared about helping those in need, the Rosines also talked about the culture, landscapes and all the delicious food they were able to experience.

"We enjoy telling our stories at Terrace Heights. The residents always show a lot of interest and ask great questions," said Sharon.

The Rosines are planning to go on another medical mission this May when ORH visits Jordan to help out at a Syrian refugee camp. Don and Sharon are also planning to take an additional seven days to tour Israel while they are in that part of the world.

This presentation is just one of the many community events held at Terrace Heights. For more information about the upcoming schedule, or to tour the facility, please call Terrace Heights Retirement Community at 608-847-2377.

Cancer care program provides much more than treatment

by Kathy Behnke

Juggling the responsibilities of work, home, children and budgets is enough to keep most people busy. When an illness like cancer is added to the mix, new challenges arise, and oftentimes financial and emotional worries increase. One person who makes it her mission to step in and offer help is Mile Bluff social worker, Rebecca Jadin.

"My goal is to introduce patients to resources at the beginning of their cancer journey. This can take a tremendous weight off patients' shoulders in the midst of an already difficult time," explains Rebecca. "I visit patients during their treatments, listen to their needs, and offer support."

Rebecca explained that patients often share their financial concerns with her, and she many times can find resources for gas money, daily living expenses and medication, as well as other forms of assistance. "Last year, I know of nearly $50,000 of assistance that I was able to connect patients with; and during the first quarter of 2013, I have found over $10,000 of help for Mile Bluff cancer patients."

Although these financial resources are a huge help, Rebecca stated that sometimes it's a simple smile and a friendly 'hello' that can make the biggest impact. "There are times when the patients' greatest need is to be distracted from their situation. I am happy to be able to provide that for them, and to let them know that they're not forgotten."

To help expand on her already-diverse knowledge, Rebecca will be attending a two-day learning session that focuses specifically on meeting the needs of cancer patients. She says that after the program 'Excellence in Cancer Education and Leadership,' she'll be even more equipped to help cancer patients. "I'll have a better understanding of how to best meet the needs of the whole person - physical, emotional, spiritual and financial."

When asked to describe Mile Bluff's Cancer Care Department, Rebecca said, "It is extremely patient-centered, and that makes it really special. The nurses are awesome and truly care about the individuals they serve. Everyone works really well as a team to meet the patients' needs."

Rebecca is proud to be a part of that team, and she looks forward to learning even more ways to assist patients throughout their cancer journey.

For more information about Mile Bluff's Cancer Care Department, call 608-847-9877.

Millie Stengel is proud to call Terrace Heights Retirement Community her home by Katie Nuttall

At any age, moving to a new home and a new city can be difficult. Regardless of how big your previous residence was or how settled in you were, living in a different setting takes some getting used to.

Since 2000, Millie Stengel has been living at Terrace Heights Retirement Community in Mauston. Before moving into her apartment there, Millie lived alone in Iowa. Over time, her daughters noticed that the house was getting to be too much for Millie to handle by herself. Her daughter Christi recalled, "Mom was living so far away from my sisters and I that we were not able to respond to her immediate needs. She wasn't in good health at the time, and there were things that she was unable to take care of in her own home. She needed to move closer to family."

"It was pretty evident, even to Mom, that she was living in a home that was way too large, that she could no longer take care of," says Christi. "Basically, my sisters and I sat her down and discussed that her living alone was no longer doable for all of us. We asked her what she wanted to do about it and we explored her options."

After looking at facilities near each of their homes, Millie's daughters decided that Terrace Heights was the best place for her to call home.

"Terrace Heights wasn't as expensive as some of the other facilities in Denver and Florida where my sisters live. Terrace Heights also offered more, and was right next to the medical center," explains Christi. "It was the physical setting of the facility that won us over. Terrace Heights isn't like a downtown high-rise. It sits far enough out of town that you can see the woods or farmland when you're in the building. I knew that was something my mom would like."

Although they did the searching, Millie did have criteria for her daughters to follow. "Finding a place that was secure was really important to me, and Terrace Heights fulfilled that need. To me, it's really important to feel safe and know that not just anyone is going to barge in here."

When it came time to move her mom to Terrace Heights, Christi knew it would be easier said than done. "Mom was moving from a large house; so making decisions about what she could take was very difficult for her," says Christi. "My sisters and I had to make a lot of the decisions ourselves."

After living in a four-bedroom house and downsizing to an apartment, Millie adjusted to the space difference. "There were certain things that I missed, like all of my books," says Millie, an avid reader. "I couldn't feel too bad though because some of the books were donated to the Rotary Club for a fundraiser, and to a veteran's hospital. Even though I was a disappointed I didn't have some things, I realized that it was all just stuff that could be replaced if I really needed it."

Millie moved to Terrace Heights sight-unseen. "I moved in on Halloween, and the first person I saw was a tenant dressed in a bag lady costume for the occasion. I thought 'What have these girls gotten me into?' I quickly realized though, just how great Terrace Heights is."

Adjusting to a new area and to new people was difficult at first, but now Millie's social calendar is quite full. She frequently goes on bus trips, attends concerts and joins in on crafting classes. "When I first moved in, I felt isolated because I was away from my friends back in Iowa, but the staff and other tenants really helped me settle in. It just goes to show, you bloom where you're planted."

Millie even fell in love while living at Terrace Heights. "I had lived here five years when I met and married Ken [who lived at Terrace Heights]. We were married five years before he passed away. We really enjoyed living here and we liked that we could come and go as we pleased."

Christi and her sisters are pleased that Millie is living at Terrace Heights. "Mom is doing wonderfully there! When she first moved in, Mom was in poor health. At the time, I thought it might only be six months before I had to move her into a nursing home," explains Christi. "Since living at Terrace Heights, her health has improved and she is very healthy and active. The improvement is remarkable! Being in an atmosphere where people are around and there are things to do has really helped Mom."

"Mom has been able to live on her own longer because of Terrace Heights," says Christi. "She still is able to maintain activity and is still living pretty independently. I do have to help her with heavy lifting, but she does a lot for herself. It is nice to know that the people around her would know if she needs something too. Even if she doesn't call me, someone will. After all this time, the staff at Terrace Heights has become an extension of our family. They take time to get to know us; even the newest great-grandchild! They really are a wonderful support for us."

Millie appreciates having the staff and other tenants to watch out for her too. "Even though we are on our own here, it's still nice to have someone who is looking out for you. We check on each other," says Millie. "Each of us also gets a Lifeline unit, so if there's an emergency, we can call for help."

Although Terrace Heights is an apartment complex that has many common areas, Millie still feels that she is able to maintain her privacy. "If I want to talk to people, I can usually find someone who wants to play a game of dominos. If I want to spend time by myself, I just stay in my apartment."

If you are a child looking to help your parents realize it's time to move out of their home, Christi has some advice. "Be very straight forward about the problems you perceive about your parents' living situation. Talk about how difficult and stressful it can be for an older person to manage a household on his/her own, and how it affects you too," says Christi. "There are so many obvious benefits of moving into a place like Terrace Heights, and your parents will no longer have to manage their household on a larger level. Terrace Heights tenants are only responsible for their own space. This is the approach we used with Mom, and it removed so much stress from her."

Knowing how great it's been for her, Millie would encourage those 62 and older to check out Terrace Heights. "A lot of people don't want to give up their homes, but there comes a time when you really can't handle it," says Millie. "Terrace Heights is just the next step in helping you maintain your independence. Here, I can do what I want in my own space, on my own time. I love my life here at Terrace Heights."

If you would like more information about Terrace Heights or would like to schedule a tour of the facility, call 608-847-2377. Apartments are available.

Mile Bluff Medical Center encourages sun safety by Travis Baumgarten

Now that it is July, some of you may have already spent time on the beach listening to the peaceful sound of waves crashing on the lakeshore. Maybe you have enjoyed the smell of a charcoal grill while sipping a glass of ice cold lemonade, as a cool breeze crosses your face and the hot sun warms your skin. Yes, summer is finally here!

While our senses love all that summer has to offer, including the warmth of the sun on our skin, it is always good to remind ourselves that too much sun can be dangerous. We should never forget the negative effects the sun can have on the body if proper precautions are not taken. As the weather gets warmer, Mile Bluff Medical Center is encouraging sun safety, and reminding everyone about the importance of protecting their skin while enjoying summer activities.

Skin cancer is the most common type of cancer, and the leading cause is too much exposure to ultraviolet (UV) rays. Most often found naturally in sunlight, UV rays are also present in manmade sources such as tanning beds. It is estimated that one in five Americans has a form of skin cancer, and of those, more than 20 die each day. No one is invincible to this disease, in fact, if you have had even one blistering sunburn while growing up, the chances of skin cancer becoming present later in life more than doubles.

So, how can you protect yourself from becoming one of these statistics? The first step is to understand what factors will increase your chances for developing skin cancer. These risk factors include fair skin, a family history of skin cancer and a weakened immune system.

Although many of the things that put you at risk for skin cancer cannot be controlled by you alone, there are some lifestyle changes that you can make to help prevent or avoid the disease. By following a few simple tips, you greatly reduce your risk of being diagnosed with skin cancer. These methods provide the best protection when used together.

Prevention methods:

Avoid direct sun exposure, especially between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Use sunscreen every day - it should have a sun protection factor (SPF) of 15 or higher, and protect against both UVA and UVB rays.

Cover up with clothing when outside.

Wear a broad-brimmed hat and UV-blocking sunglasses.

Avoid tanning and UV tanning booths.

Be sure to re-apply sunscreen every two hours.

After learning what factors put you at risk for skin cancer, and how to prevent it, the next important step is to know the warning signs. If detected early, skin cancer can be treated. The best way to achieve early detection is by performing monthly head-to-toe skin checks at home, in addition to the yearly exam performed by your primary healthcare provider. The most common sign in identifying skin cancer is the presence of irregular moles. An ordinary mole will be an evenly-colored spot that is brown, tan or flesh-colored; it will be either flat or raised, and will have sharply defined borders. If you notice one that has some of the following characteristics, be sure to share your findings with your healthcare provider right away.

Signs and symptoms:

The spread of pigment from the border of a mole to the surrounding skin

A change in sensation of a mole - itchiness, tenderness or pain

A change in the surface of a mole - oozing, bleeding or the appearance of a bump or nodule

Moles that stand out or look different from others

The warm sun is one of the best things about summer, just remember to enjoy responsibly. If you have questions regarding prevention or specific risks for skin cancer, Mile Bluff is available to help. Make an appointment today with one of Mile Bluff's healthcare providers to better understand what the outcomes of good sun safety practices will mean for your health. Additionally, there are oncology specialists and cancer care services available locally if it is determined that you need them. For more information on the services offered at Mile Bluff Medical Center, call 608-847-6161, or to make an appointment with a healthcare provider, call one of the numbers below.
